

Erasmus and Erasmus+ are international programs implemented by the European Union with the aim of promoting student and staff mobility in higher education, fostering intercultural interaction, and encouraging academic cooperation. Within the scope of these programs, students are provided with opportunities to study in different countries and gain international academic experience, while sustainable educational networks are established between institutions.

Our Conservatory actively carries out international collaborations within the framework of the Erasmus student exchange program and offers its students the opportunity to receive education abroad. In addition, our Conservatory takes an active role in Erasmus+ projects, enabling our students to participate regularly and effectively in short-term Erasmus+ programs, through which they gain diverse artistic and academic experiences in various European countries. At the same time, Erasmus+ project development activities are conducted within our Conservatory, and an international project culture is institutionally supported.

The primary objective of our Conservatory's Erasmus and Erasmus+ activities is to enhance our students' artistic, academic, and cultural competencies at an international level; to familiarize them with different educational approaches; and to provide them with a multidimensional perspective on contemporary music education. In this process, it is aimed to support students' individual and professional development and to educate them as self-confident and well-equipped artists through international experience. Our Conservatory regards strengthening international cooperation, increasing project development capacity, and enhancing the visibility of its expertise in Turkish music on European academic and artistic platforms through Erasmus and Erasmus+ programs as an integral part of its institutional vision.
